

2016-2017 INDEPENDENT STATUS CERTIFICATION

Federal student aid programs are based on the concept that it is primarily your and your family’s responsibility to pay for your education. Your answers to questions on the financial aid application determine whether you are considered a dependent or independent student. Students cannot be considered independent for any of the following reasons: not living with your parent, not being claimed by your parent on tax forms, parent’s refusal to provide their information, or the student’s self-sufficiency.

INSTRUCTIONS: After review of your financial aid application, it has been determined that you indicated that you qualify for one of the special independency considerations. Furthermore, it has been determined that this is the only criterion which is qualifying you as an independent student for financial aid purposes. As a result, we must certify your independent status. Please complete the information below and return to the Contra Costa College Office of Financial Assistance, along with any required documentation to demonstrate your status (as indicated below).

SECTION IV: DEPENDENCY OVERRIDE

None of the above special independency considerations apply to me, but I have an unusual family circumstance that makes getting my parent information impossible – contact the Office of Financial Assistance to inquire about applying for a Dependency Override. Please note: a parent’s unwillingness to provide their information, or a parent’s inability to financially contribute, or the student’s self-sufficiency, are not considered to be extenuating circumstances for dependency status overrides.
