Subject: [Primary] EBSCO databases now available for CCLC

Access Information for EBSCO Publishing Databases

The EBSCO databases contracted by California Community Colleges Electronic Information Resources for Libraries are now available for access. To log in to the databases, go to <http://search.ebscohost.com>

If you would prefer direct URLs to the individual databases, please use the individual links provided at the end of this document.

CCLC has provided EBSCO with your IP addresses which have been entered into your EBSCOhost account. All campus computers should get right into the databases using the provided links. If you are interested in setting up remote access for your users and your IP addresses we received do not include your proxy server (if you have one), please contact EBSCO Customer Support to have them assist you with this set up.

EBSCOadmin is the administrative module that enables you to customize your EBSCOhost account (to be covered in a future training), access your usage statistics, and much more. If you are new to EBSCOhost, please contact EBSCO Customer Support to obtain information for accessing your EBSCOadmin account.

EBSCO offers a variety of interfaces to view and search some of our databases. The EBSCOhost Research Database interface is the main interface for most EBSCO databases. Additional interfaces are available for specific databases which were designed to help users best access the unique database content. The following interfaces are available for the statewide databases. Click on the links for more information on these interfaces from EBSCO's support site.

- EBSCOhost Research Databases
- Automotive Repair Reference Center
- Book Index with Reviews
- Student Research Center (designed for students who prefer a more visual interface for selected databases)

We strongly recommend that you JoinOurMailingLists to receive pertinent information from EBSCO Publishing.

If you have any questions or need additional information, please contact your EBSCO Account Representative or EBSCO's Customer Support group. We look forward to working with all the CCLC members!
