LMC Self-paced Beginner's Guide to Canvas SU20

Welcome, LMC Instructors!

Thank you for joining us for our Self-paced Beginner's Guide to Teaching with Canvas. This is an introduction into using Canvas to support student success. The course will take around five hours to complete on your own, depending on your current level of proficiency with Canvas.

While the foundational skills we'll cover here will be applicable to faculty in face-to-face, hybrid, and online courses, they are particularly valuable for instructors who will continue to take the District's four-week online course, Becoming an Effective Online Instructor (BEOI). The BEOI course - or a comparable one - is required under our most recent contract to teach online. If you have completed a comparable training for online teaching, you may complete and submit the Submission for Comparable Training for Online Teaching at CCCCD ⊡ for review.

The Beginner's Guide to Teaching with Canvas is designed in 4 main parts:

- Step 1: Listen to Student Stories & Learn Canvas Basics
- Step 2: Apply Simple Course Design Principles
- Step 3: Gradebook and Student Feedback
- Step 4: Make Canvas Welcoming to Students
- with Extra (Optional) Support

Navigation Tips

- You'll find learning activities to read through/complete in Modules.
- We recommend working through each step in order.
- Clicking on Modules from a desktop or laptop computer gives you the best view. You'll see a green checkmark next to items you've completed, and an empty circle next to content you haven't viewed/submitted yet.
- Clicking Grades is another way to check on your progress and view feedback from one of your campus support professionals. (Learn how to check grades in a Canvas course ⊡.)
- This course will be open for self-paced participation at any time. It will remain on your Dashboard after you complete the course in case you want to refer back to these materials (unless you choose to remove it ⊡).
